Our Farms

Small, Family Farms

All of our products come from small farms in the Midwest. In fact, they largely come from small, Amish / Mennonite family farms where the average daily herd is 35 cows and where most of the work is still done by hand. Many of these farms—most of which are on about 90 tillable acres—have been in the same family for 150 years and have never been touched by chemical herbicides or pesticides.

Provision Ingredients is committed to helping small farmers make organic farming a viable lifestyle. We strive to keep our products local and to ensure a fair and stable pay price. But our farmers tell us the biggest advantage to working with us is that they can focus on working in the fields instead of worrying about sales and marketing. By spending more time in the field, our farmers are able to increase their level of production, which is essential to the success of any small farmer.
